Language Structure

Imagery Imagery is a mental picture created by the descriptive language that a writer chooses for effect. For example, The sunset was spectacular; the clouds were edged with pink and gold.	Simile A figure of speech in which two things are compared using the word "like" or "as." An example of a simile using like occurs in Langston Hughes's poem 'Harlem': It dries up like a raisin in the sun?	Metaphor Describing something as though it were actually something else. For example A swallow being described as 'a blue-dark knot of glittering voltage'.
Extended metaphor. A comparison is developed over the course of the poem so that the poem itself becomes the metaphor. For example, In A Poison Tree by William Blake the poem center's around the speaker's anger growing like an apple on a tree.	Personification A figure of speech in which nonhuman things or abstract ideas are given human attributes: The sky is crying, dead leaves danced in the wind, blind justice.	Symbolism When a word, phrase or image 'stands for' an idea or theme. The sun could symbolize life and energy or a red rose could symbolize romantic love.
Alliteration This is the repetition of the same consonant sound at the beginning of words next to, or near each other, to produce an effect. From pillar to post a pantomime.	Onomatopoeia A figure of speech in which words are used to imitate sounds. Examples of onomatopoeic words are: buzz, hiss, zing, clippety-clop, cock-a-doodle-do, pop, splat, thump, tick-tock.	Irony irony is saying one thing and meaning another. Irony can also be used to mean perverse or contra- ry events or information. For example, It's like rain on your wedding day It's a free ride when you've already paid It's the good advice that you just didn't take

Free Verse

Free verse is an open form of poetry. It does not use consistent meter patterns, rhyme, or any musical pattern. It thus tends to follow the rhythm of natural speech.
